History

In 2005, master potter Dan Bennett transformed his two-car garage into a studio. He invited a small group of Molokai artists to share his space and equipment. Dan taught, guided, and encouraged this growing group of potters and sculptors.

Five years later, over 20 eager artists were creating and collaborating. Dan’s modest space was bursting at the seams. Everyone was limited to two hours studio time per week; kiln space, wheel time and glazing tables became precious resources. More people were waiting to join. Our burgeoning community needed a new home.

We needed more space and equipment for ourselves, but as we “talked story” about it, we also realized that we wanted to grow the artistic community on Molokai. Several skilled artists were willing to offer free instruction in visual arts, music, and dance. Artists visiting our island wanted to share their knowledge with the local community, and that needed some structure.

On August 06, 2010, Molokai Arts Center, Inc. was established as a non-profit 501(c)(3) organization in the state of Hawaii.

We wanted to create opportunities for new artists through adult and children’s classes. We wanted to make local art more accessible through a small gallery space specifically for local artists. We wanted to create a space where experienced artists visiting our island could share their knowledge with our community.

Through a partnership with Coffees of Hawaii and many dedicated and skilled volunteers, the Molokai Arts Center Studio opened in February 2012. We started with 1000 square feet of ceramic studio space, 10 pottery wheels, one kiln, and a showroom.

As we celebrate our tenth anniversary in the midst of COVID-19, the MAC as it is affectionately known, continues to grow despite its limited capacity.

We have outgrown our space and have partnered with Molokai Public Library, Office of Hawaiian Affairs, Molokai Community Health Center, Ka Honua Momona, and other agencies to host larger workshops and community events. We employ a Studio Manager and contract teachers who started out as students of the MAC. We hired a part-time Executive Director, born and raised on Molokai, to administer our growing number of programs. Many of our member artists have created small businesses to share their handcrafted works.

We have established programs beyond our original ceramics classes, including Hawaiian Arts Program, visiting artists workshops, Artist in Residence Program, and MAC at the Library. We have held workshops in a variety of media including painting, lauhala weaving, fish net making, stained glass, dance, music, literary arts, printmaking, culinary arts. We have partnered with local schools and agencies to provide art education for all ages, from Keiki to Kupuna.

We are proud to celebrate ten years of growing the arts community on Molokai and look forward with optimism and vigor as we continue to serve our Island home.
